

Preventing Hair Loss With Herbs

Contributed by admin
Monday, 25 December 2006

Hair is also most important part of our beauty. Healthy hair is a reflection of a healthy body. According to Ayurveda, beauty lies with proper hair care which involves nourishing the hair follicles from the outside and inside. Herbs can prevent the hair loss which is an inevitable evident for many people because they support the body's natural healing mechanisms to target the cause of the problem.

However you can not avoid this truth that herbal hair loss remedies are phenomenon solution for all sufferers. In fact there is a growing evidence to support the view that some herbal remedies offer real hope to many people. Green tea may inhibit the enzyme 5-alpha-reductase that converts testosterone into hair-unfriendly DHT because it is believed that catechins are found in Green tea. This is why it is believed to be effective in preventing and treating male pattern type baldness. You should go for drinking several cups of green tea each day or take it in capsule form as instructed by the manufacturer. The current treatment for hair loss is Saw palmetto which has a great choice for many men due to its ability to protect the prostate. No doubt it will slow hair loss and encourage hair re-growth. You can get it easily in its pure form; however it becomes the prime element of many commercially prepared hair loss treatments. The recommended dose is a 160mg capsule twice each day, but make sure the ingredients are made from the berry extract not the dried berries themselves. Hair Rejuv is one of the excellent herbal hair loss remedy. If you will use it regularly Hair Rejuv will provide nutrition to your hair. This herbal combination is an excellent source of vitally important nutrients for healthy, shiny, vibrant hair as nature intended. It's never too late to rejuvenate lifeless, thin or brittle hair. Results are guaranteed after 2-3 months of continuous use. This formula uses herbal extracts, which are about 8-10 times stronger than taking raw herbs.

In this way you can bring back the shiny glow to your hair. Don't delay run for it!